Public Guide to Hospice & Palliative Care

Millions of families turn to hospice and palliative care each year. Here's why they both matter.

70%

of people say they would prefer to spend their final days at home

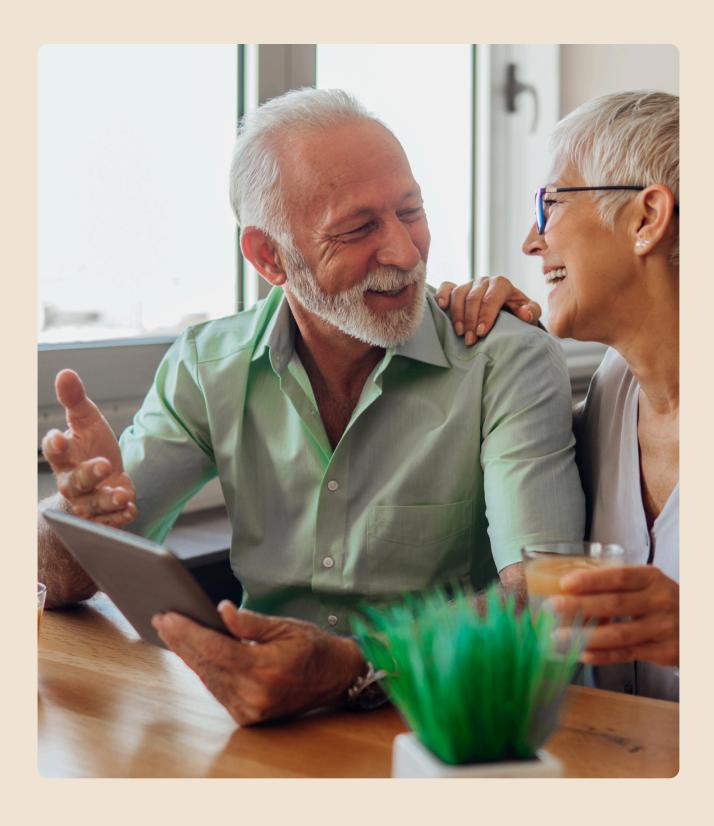

But fewer than 30% actually do — unless hospice care is involved.

of hospice care is provided at home or in a home-like setting

That means more time with loved ones in the comfort of home, less time in hospitals.

What is hospice?

Hospice is a type of care for people with a serious illness that won't get better. It helps with pain, symptoms, and stress so the person can feel as comfortable as possible.

Back to Contents Page

Hospice also supports families & friends of patients too!

Hospice care focuses on comfort and support. It's about what matters most to the person — what they want, what they care about, and helping them live as well as possible, not just treating their illness.

It's not about finding a cure; it's about giving care that feels right and matches the patient's wishes.

What hospice includes

03

Hospice care is different from other types of health care because it helps with your body, mind, and spirit, not just your illness. We call this holistic care.

√ Medical Care & Symptom Management

- Pain and other symptoms are eased to suit each person
- Support for physical comfort and mobility
- Medications related to symptom control

Family, Patient & Caregiver Support

- Education, respite care, and 24/7 on-call help are part of hospice to ease the burden on loved ones
- Hospice aides help with bathing, dressing, eating, and other daily needs

Emotional & Spiritual Support

- Counseling, spiritual care, and therapy for patients
- Grief and bereavement services for families

And so much more!

Who is on the care team?

Hospice care is a team effort that supports the whole person and their loved ones. Each team member has a special role to help give care that is complete, caring, and based on what the patient needs and values.

Social Worker

Helps with emotional support, family relationships, planning for future care, and connecting patients with helpful resources in their community.

Volunteers

Trained helpers who spend time with patients, run errands, or give caregivers a break. They're an important part of the caring support hospice provides.

Hospice Nurse

Helps manage daily medical care, keeps track of symptoms and comfort, and is the main point of contact for the family.

Physician/Medical Director

Leads the patient's care plan, works with the hospice team, and makes sure the care matches the patient's goals and health needs.

Hospice Aide (CNA or HHA)

Gives personal care like bathing, grooming, and light help to support the patient's comfort and dignity.

Grief & Bereavement Counselors

Helps families before and after a loved one passes away, giving support as they cope and begin to heal during a hard time.

Some Myths

Back to Contents Page

Myth #1: Hospice is only for the last few days of life.

Fact: Hospice can support patients for several months before a person passes away. Getting care earlier can bring more comfort, support, and peace of mind.

Myth #2: Hospice is only for older adults.

Fact: Hospice care is for people of all ages, even children, who have a serious illness.

Myth #3: You can't receive any medical care in hospice.

Fact: Patients in hospice still get medicine, equipment, and medical help to manage pain and feel more comfortable.

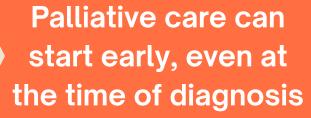

Myth #4: Hospice is a physical place

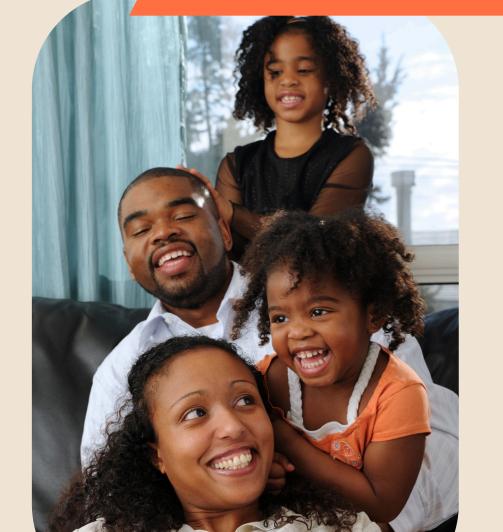

Fact: Most hospice care happens at home, wherever "home" is, with support for both the patient and their family.

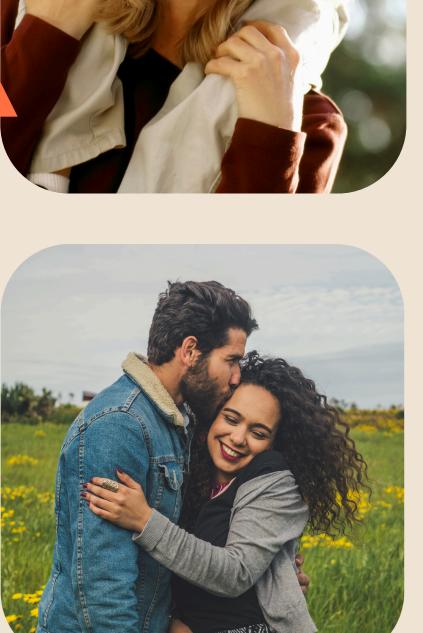

Myth #5: Families are left to figure everything out on their own.

Fact: Hospice also supports families with emotional, spiritual, and practical help. This includes 24/7 support, grief counseling, and advice for caregivers that continues after their loved one has passed away.

What is palliative care?

Palliative care is specialized medical care that focuses on relieving symptoms, stress, and improving quality of life for people with serious illnesses — at any age or stage.

Care for mind & body

Palliative care can be given at any time during a serious illness, even if the person is still getting treatment to try to get better. A team of doctors, nurses, social workers, and others work together to care for the whole person—not just their illness.

This kind of care helps people feel more comfortable, learn about their choices, and live as well as they can. It also gives extra support to patients and families when they need it most.

What's included in palliative care?

Palliative care can be provided at any age, at any stage, and alongside curative treatment.

- Emotional & Mental Health Support
- Counseling, coping strategies, and stress reduction for patients and families
 - Family & Caregiver Support
- Guidance, resources, and emotional support for loved ones

- Symptom Management
- Relief from pain, discomfort, and other distressing symptoms
 - 1 Flexible Settings
- Care provided in hospitals, clinics, long-term care, or at home

- Example 2 Care Planning & Communication
- Help with making medical decisions that reflect the patient's goals and values

And so much more!
